HUNDREDS OF PRICES DOWN AND COUNTING AT COLES Down Down relaunch in stores saves Aussies on breakfast, lunch and dinner

Coles has taken the price of some of Australia's breakfast, lunch and dinner favourites Down Down since the start of the year, helping lower the cost of a weekly shop for Aussie families.

The price reductions include Coles Pikelets 8-pack, Down Down to $2 from $3†; Coles Free Range Eggs 12 pack 600g, Down Down to $3.90 from $4.10; Coles Spaghetti 500g, Down Down to $1 from $1.20; and Coles Boneless Pork Shoulder Roast, Down Down to $7.50/kg from $9/kg.

Perfect for back-to-school lunchboxes, Coles 24 pack Cheese Slices are Down Down to $6.50 from $7; while Coles Banana Bread Slices 5-packs are Down Down to $4.50 from $5.

Coles has undertaken a major relaunch of Down Down in stores to lower the price of hundreds of products across the entire product range, including breakfast cereals, pasta, tinned tuna, fresh convenience foods, healthcare, pet food, poultry, seafood, tinned fruit, smallgoods, and bakery cakes.

Coles Chief Executive Commercial and Express Greg Davis said that by dropping the price on products customers buy the most, Coles was helping Australian families save money every week.

"A lot of Australian families are looking to get better value from their weekly budget, and with people still eating more meals at home we want to deliver great prices on the quality food our customers want to eat for breakfast, lunch and dinner," he said.

"Since the start of the year we've lowered more than 250 prices – and we're not finished yet, which is why we say prices are 'Down and Counting'.

"Over the past 10 years customers have come to recognise Down Down and the Big Red Hand as indicators of trusted value at Coles, and our rollout of further Down Down prices lets them know that we are more committed than ever to lowering the cost of their weekly shop."

Coles is also helping customers feed even the largest of families on a budget by bringing back the popular Big Pack Value Sale, with significant savings on 40 select products in bulk sizes, including family dinner staples, condiments, and baking products.
